Preface

Mass transportation is continuing to receive increasing public support in Montana and nationwide. This public support has led to growth accross the State in the number of special transportation systems for the elderly and handicapped, as well as public systems. This continued growth has increased the need to update the 1982 transportation service inventory.

INTRODUCTION

The trend in recent years toward shifting urban transit from the private to the public sector has been completed. Citizens in most larger Montana communities are now served by publicly-owned transit systems. Local officials are becoming increasingly aware of their communities' public transportation needs and are involved in finding ways of meeting these needs. This heightened involvement by local officials in meeting transportation needs can be illustrated by the fact that previously the only cities in the state that had public transit systems were Billings, Butte, Missoula and Helena. Now, public transit services are also available in Great Falls, in Valley, Powder River, Garfield, Daniels and McCone counties, and on the Fort Peck and Blackfeet Reservations.

The number of local housing and work programs for the handicapped, as well as programs for the elderly, have been increasing steadily. These programs, coupled with diminishing taxi-cab service, have led to continuing high demand for special transportation in Montana's rural areas and smaller communities.

Diminishing federal funds for operating handicapped and elderly-transportation programs have prompted the Montana Departments of Commerce and Social and Rehabilitation Services to stress that local programs begin to cooperate and coordinate with each other so that they can use their dwindling resources more efficiently to ensure that the elderly and handicapped receive the services they need.

In preparing and updating this report, we have sought to give a clear picture of the transportation services available to Montana citizens.

EXISTING TRANSPORTATION SYSTEMS

Three kinds of mass transportation systems operate in Montana -- intercity carriers, community public systems and specialized transportation systems. In this report, intercity carriers will be discussed under intercity transportation systems. Community public systems, taxi-cab services and specialized transportation systems will be reviewed under local transportation systems.

I. Intercity Transportation Systems

Eleven intercity transit lines operate on regular schedules in the state. (Refer to Table I) Amtrak's northern route, which parallels U.S. Highway 2 east-west across the state, is the only passenger rail service offered in Montana. Service along this route is offered seven days a week.

In 1978, Amtrak discontinued its southern route, which paralleled Interstate Highway 90-94

II. Local Transportation Systems

A. Community Public Systems -- Montana communities that provide local public transportation include Billings, Great Falls, Helena, Butte, Missoula, Glasgow (Valley County), Poplar (Fort Peck Indian Reservation), Scobey (Daniels County) and Circle (McCone County).

The Billings, Great Falls, Butte, Helena and Missoula public transit systems are owned by either the city itself or the local transit district. These systems serve the general public.

The operations in Valley, Garfield, Daniels, McCone and Powder River counties are combined elderly-handicapped and public systems, which are sponsored by private non-profit organizations.

The respective Tribes own and operate the Fort Peck Reservation system and the Blackfeet Reservation system.

Taxi-cabs also provide a vital transportation service for elderly and handicapped citizens, as well as the general public. As mentioned above, the number of taxi-cab companies across the state has been declining in recent years. Currently, there is a total of 19 cab companies operating in 17 Montana cities.

Since 1978, seven new intercity transit systems have commenced operations in Montana. Two of these operations have been discontinued, along with six other systems that were operating prior to 1978.

The systems that have been discontinued since 1978 include the southern route of Amtrak, Lost Trail Stage, Butte-Wisdom, Lincoln Transportation, Big Sky Express, Red River Valley Stage, Continental and Salmon River Stage.

The systems that are still operating that have commenced since 1978 are Rimrock Stage, Trailways, Rocky Mountain Stage, Legan Bus Lines and Wilson/Moss Transportation.

For the most part, the passenger service routes formerly served by the eight transit companies that have gone out of business are now being covered by other carriers.

It should be noted that Fallon, Carter, Powder River, Garfield, McCone, Daniels and Petroleum counties in the east, as well as Madison, Sanders and Liberty counties in the west, do not have any intercity passenger service.
